

The area's newest service group — a guild to Danville's Child Resource Center — was launched recently at an organizational meeting and lunch at Dan McGrew's restaurant. Thirty women, all interested in helping the center in its work with learning disabled youngsters, were present to hear charter officers outline the new group's aims and purposes. For its first activity the guild will sponsor a tour of the center on May 31. Those wishing to affiliate are invited to call Cathy Huovinen, 837-6562. In photo above, the center's executive director, Miriam Sexton, second from left, poses with volunteers Margaret Faris, Laurie Howard, Kathy Sweeney and Marilyn Bowker, while, below, charter vice president Cathy Huovinen is pictured with Linda Schwadener, secretary, and Mary Church, president.
